From August 1, 1886, to August 1, 1888, three thousand one hundred and eighty rejected applications and nearly $16,000 have been returned to applicants or their attorneys. During the same period over nine thousand letters have been received and answered.

In May of this year complete delinquent lists were sent to the District Attorneys of each county in the State where there were delinquent purchasers of State School Lands.

DELINQUENT INTEREST ON STATE LANDS.

Suits in foreclosure, instituted because of the non-payment of the annual interest due on State lands, are extremely expensive legal proceedings; and long experience has demonstrated that such suits invariably result in loss rather than benefit to the interest of the State. If the lands are of value, the delinquent interest is always paid, even though it often amounts to as much as the principal. On the other hand, when the lands revert to the State they are found to be of no value whatever, and the State suffers the loss of the expense of the suit in foreclosure. During the last eighteen years the Registers have sent out the delinquent lists only seven times, though required to do so annually.

I concur with the expressed opinion of my predecessor, that the law should be changed so as not to require the issuance of delinquent lists oftener than once in four years, or else fix a limit to the cost of foreclosure so as not to absorb all the money received by the State. The law of 1863 fixed a limit to the amount payable in such suits; but the costs now demanded are generally much greater than the amount collected by the State.

STATE SCHOOL LANDS.

I would also recommend an examination, by such methods as the Legislature may prescribe, of the remaining unsold State School Lands, with a view of discovering their quality and grading their value, in order that the lands may be sold at an approximation to their true value, and the School Fund thereby be increased by a much larger amount than it would be if the land were sold at the present price of $1 25 an acre.

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND-ACRE GRANT.

I would also recommend the adoption of a concurrent resolution requesting our delegates in Congress to use their best endeavors before the Department of the Interior to secure the final settlement between the State and the United States of the five hundred thousand-acre grant, believing that there is still a balance due the State of California of some ten thousand acres.

A close inspection of the foregoing tabulated statements, showing the number of patents and certificates issued, and amount of acreage entered, will indicate the largely increased sale of lands (far in excess of that under any former administration), and the consequent increase in the volume of labor devolving upon the Surveyor-General and his assistants during the present incumbency. In order to keep pace with the large accumulation of work incident to this great volume of business, the clerical force of my office has been steadily employed early and late. The large increase of fees received shows conclusively that never before in the history of this office has such an unprecedented amount of business been transacted.

The office during the past two years has not only been self-sustaining, but has paid into the Treasury of the State a large surplus.

The indexing and transcribing of the lieu books are now some six months in arrears, owing to the small clerical force not having the time to devote to this work. The completion of this work is a matter of importance to the public, and will be finished as soon as time is found.

The last Legislature appropriated $2,000 for the purchase of maps and copying the same for the two fiscal years ending July 1, 1889 - $1,000 of which was judiciously expended during the fiscal year ending July 1, 1888, in copying and transcribing the old and mutilated tract books into new ones, which had already been purchased. The work is being prosecuted and will be completed at no distant day.

With the consent of the honorable Board of Examiners, this office employed an extra clerk for the period of four months, in order to assist the regular force in the prosecution of the public business, incurring an expense of $532, and I respectfully ask that the payment of this claim be recommended to the honorable Legislature for passage.

I take this opportunity to extend my thanks to my assistants, who have labored day and night to cope with the unexpected and unprecedented volume of business, without a complaint or expectation of reward.

In conclusion, I would suggest that this office be allowed two extra clerks, to be employed whenever – in the discretion of the Surveyor-General – their services may be required; also, that the appropriation for postage and expressage be increased, as the present amount is found to be inadequate for the requirements of the business of this office.

Inasmuch as by Section 483 of the Political Code the State Surveyor-General is required to report to the Governor "all facts in his opinion calculated to promote the development of the resources of the State," I deem it my duty to make some suggestions to your Excellency, relative to matters which I consider to be, at present, of the most vital importance to the interests of the State.

Since man receives from the soil and the use of water all things necessary for the support of his body, the laws regulating the distribution and use of these elements are to the highest importance in the economy of civilized life, and should seriously occupy the attention of those officers of the Government whose duty it is to frame such laws as may be required for the protection of property and for the equitable adjustment of the right to use such elements as are inseparable from the necessities of human existence.

Fortunately for the prosperity of the State, the recent decisions of the highest tribunals of the country have done much toward settling forever all questions with respect to Spanish land grants in California, which for more than thirty years have harrassed the people, occupied the Courts, and retarded the prosperity of the country.

The report of my predecessor of 1886 shows, that of the eight hundred and thirteen claims of Spanish and Mexican land grants presented to the Land Commission, under the Act of the third of March, 1851, only a few remain to be patented, and most of these are small lots forming parts of grants, sold in small parcels to individuals; so that the vexatious questions relative to Spanish and Mexican land grants in California may be considered as practically settled.

There is, however, another question, which is now agitating the people of the State, which is, perhaps, of quite as much importance to the well-being and prosperity of the country as the settlement of questions relative to the titles and locations of Spanish land grants; and this is the question relative to the use of flowing water for the purposes of irrigation.

The water of flowing streams is to the earth what the blood in the veins and arteries is to the animal system: one giving life and energy to the body, and the other fruitfulness to the earth.

In England, where the earth is watered by frequent summer showers, and the soil moistened by ocean fogs, water for the public use is not a thing of so much importance as it is in those arid regions of the earth where it seldom rains, and where, without irrigation, the earth would be a barren desert without human habitation.

Therefore, the framers of the common law of England, not being taught by necessity the importance of providing for the common use of the flowing waters of the country, gave the same to the owners of the land bordering the stream.

For the reasons above stated, this law has for centuries, perhaps, worked no hardship or injustice to the inhabitants of that country; but, from the nature of things, it is manifest that laws, which in one country might be beneficial or harmless, in another, surrounded by different conditions, would be utterly ruinous.

The inhabitants of all arid countries being impelled by their needs have, from time immemorial, given much attention to the laws regulating the public or common use of flowing waters.

Spain and large portions of Spanish American being naturally arid and subject to protracted droughts, it has been found necessary to make very significant laws and regulations relative to the distribution and common use of flowing waters. Hence, many laws on this subject are found recorded in the "Partidas," and "Recopilacion de Indias," and, besides, learned essays and reports on the same subject.

The jealous care with which the Spanish laws have from the earliest times granted such common rights as pertain to the use of waters, is shown by the "Partidas," which declare: "That the 'ribero del mar' (sea bench), the space between high and low tide, cannot be granted to any person, nor can the exclusive right to the use thereof be conceded to any one whomsoever; but, that all shall have a right to use the same” – in other words, that it should be reserved for public use.

In view of this ancient law, the Territorial Deputation (legislative) of California passed a resolution in 1835 authorizing grants of one hundred vara lots to be made in Yerba Buena (now San Francisco) two hundred varas back from the shores of the bay; thus reserving for public use the “ribero,” or sea bench, as required by the laws of the “Partidas.”

The General Regulations,” published in the City of Mexico in 1761, declare that “la regalia” is a certain “derecho de imperio” (imperial right) which pertains to the sovereign in certain things, among which are waters, lands, and mines; that only to the Prince, and to no one else, belongs the power to distribute the waters. That with respect to New Spain, His Majesty has conceded the most ample authority to the Viceroy and Presidents of the Royal Audience, to the end, that in conformity with the laws and regulations relative thereto, they should make grants of lands and water as of things pertaining to the royal crown.

From the foregoing extracts it is seen that to the kings alone, or to his delegates, belongs the power to grant and distribute lands and the use of flowing waters in the countries of New Spain.

The customs of the inhabitants of New Spain induced them to live in pueblos, or villages, around an in the neighborhood of which were located their small plantations, on which were produced their cereals, fruits, and vegetables.

These pueblos were located on lands bordering on flowing streams furnishing sufficient water for irrigating the lands occupied and cultivated by the inhabitants of the pueblo, the stock farms being on lands that were not susceptible of irrigation, and were only fit for grazing.

Pueblos were established under the laws of the Indies, and to the Ayuntamientos (town council) thereof were delegated certain powers, such as the granting of “suertes” (planting grounds) and “solares” (house lots) to settlers, and the establishing of regulations for the distribution of the flowing water required for irrigating the sowing the lands of the pueblo.

There being no cultivation on the stock farms, no irrigation was required, the only water needed on such establishment being what was required for the use of the stock occupying the same; hence, such lands were called “de abrevadero” (a watering place for stock).

Had the territory of Spanish-America been divided into small farms, as is the prevailing custom among English-speaking people who carry on the agriculture and stock raising in the same rural establishment, then the same laws and regulations relative to the use of flowing waters which control the government of pueblos would doubtless have been enforced with regard to the use of water on farms or ranchos.

The municipal laws and regulations of pueblos, relative to the distribution and use of water, were exceedingly stringent, the doctrine being that the water belonged to the land, and that it should be so used as that the soil should be forced to yield the greatest possible product of what is required for the support of man.

Under these laws, an officer was appointed by the Town Council, whose duty it was to attend to the distribution of water on the irrigable lands, and to see that no portion thereof, which was under cultivation, should lack its needed supply,

So strictly were these laws enforced, that if the owner of a lot in cultivation should fail, from neglect or inability, to irrigate his land when his growing crop required water, the officer in charge of the distribution of the water was required to employ some one to attend to the matter, in which case the owner of the lot and crop was charged with the expense of irrigation; the principle established being that in any event productive land should receive the amount of water to which it was entitled, so that it might yield the fruits in which all the inhabitants of the pueblo had a common interest.

The eleventh section of the Act of Congress of March 3, 1851, "to ascertain and settle the private land claims in the State of California," provides: "That the Commissioners therein provided for, and the District and Supreme Courts, in deciding upon any claim brought before them under the provisions of that Act, shall be governed by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo; the law of nations; the laws, usages, and customs of the Government from which the claim is derived; the principles of equity, and the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, as far as they are applicable." (Fremont vs. United States, 17 How. 553.)

In the same case, on page 557, the United States Supreme Court says: "It is proper to remark that the laws of these territories under which titles were claimed were never treated by the Court as foreign laws, to be decided as a question of fact. It was always held that the Court was bound judicially to notice them as much as the laws of a State or Union. In doing this, however, it was undoubtedly often necessary to inquire into official customs, and forms of usages. They constitute what may be called the common or unwritten law of every civilized country."

The following is the language of the late learned Caleb Cushing: "By the laws of Spain and of the Mexican Republic, grants of land on the banks of a river extend to the filum aquæ (edge of the stream), if it be navigable, or to the middle of the river bed (alveo), if it be innavigable."

Thus, in the case of two properties, situated on opposite sides of the river, each proprietor is entitled to the ordinary riparian rights of use and improvement on his side, and to the use and take of water for the purpose of irrigation or for mills.

If the river be innavigable, the opposite riparian proprietors own to the middle of the river bed, according to the extent lengthwise of the river, of their respective properties on the river bank; and if it dry up – as happens to many rivers, either temporarily or permanently – they may occupy the river bed as appertinent to their respective riparian properties.

(See "Escriche," under the words "Rio Agua," "Aluvion," "Isla," "Ribero Lago." See also the "Partidas," No. 5, Title 28.)

Under the regulations of 1761, there was what was called "La servidumbre del aqueducto," that is, the right of a person to conduct water over the property belonging to some one else to irrigate his own land.

All laws originate from the necessities of man, and from the conditions and circumstances of the country which they are intended to govern.

England being a country with a naturally moist climate, and abundantly supplied with rain, the common law made no provision for watering the earth by irrigation, because it was never required.

A large portion of Spanish-America being arid, in order that the earth might produce the fruits required for the support of its inhabitants, it was found necessary, in framing laws for the government of the country, to make provisions for supplying the soil with the needed water; hence, the doctrine of these laws, that the waters of flowing streams belonged to the sovereign of the country, and not exclusively to the owners of the lands bordering the streams, the sovereign authority distributing the usufruct of these waters in such a manner as that all fruitful soil might receive its equitable share, to the end that the earth might be made to produce food sufficient to the inhabitants thereof.

Since all law springs from the requirements of man, the more universal and urgent the need of the law the greater will be the attention given to, and the labor bestowed in the framing thereof.

For this reason we find that the Spanish laws of the Indies, and the regulations established in Spanish-America, with respect to the use of water, are, like the Spanish mining laws, far more perfect than are the common laws of England with regard to the same matters, since they are the result of centuries of such experience as springs from necessity.

From the foregoing it is seen what were the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish and Mexican Government, with regard to the use of water for purposes of irrigation. It is also shown that the Act of Congress of March 3, 1851, declares that the Commissioners appointed under said Act, in determining the rights of claimants under the Government, shall be governed by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo; the law of nations; the laws, usages, and customs of the Government from which the claim is derived; the principles of equity and decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States – and that the Supreme Court says, in the Fremont case, that “the laws of these territories under which titles were claimed were never treated by the Court; as foreign laws, and, also, that they Court was bound judicially to notice them as much as the laws of a State or Union;” and that they constitute what may be called the common or unwritten law of every civilized country.

It is manifest, therefore, that under the foregoing provisions and decisions, all water rights which had accrued to lands granted by the governments of Spain and Mexico are bound to be protected by the laws and the Courts of the United States.

And since it has been shown, that whenever lands were used for agricultural purposes under the former governments, these laws were enforced, it is but fair to presume that if the same agricultural habits and customs had prevailed among the inhabitants of California under the former government, these laws or usages would have been observed in the rural districts of the country the same as in the pueblo establishments, in which it was the custom of the inhabitants of the country to reside, as has been shown.

If it be determined by the Courts of California that the wise and judicious laws of the former governments of the country relative to the use of water are only applicable to rights which accrued under grants given by said governments, and do not affect those portions of the State in which at the date of the treaty of cession no grants had been made, and that, therefore, these portions with respect to riparian rights are now to be controlled by the principles of the common law, it is manifest that for the well being and prosperity of the agricultural interests of the country the law be so modified as to give such encouragement and protection to agriculture as was given by the laws of the former governments of the country, or such as may be better fitted to our civilization and modes of life and progressive knowledge in agriculture.

Respectfully submitted.
